ARSON FOR REVENUE.

The Work of an Organized Gang of Anarchists in Chicago.

CONFESSION OF THE PRINCIPAL.

It Was His Business to Cause Fires for the Purpose of Defrauding Insurance Companies, He Receiving a Hundred Dollars for Each Conflagration.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Carl Herlitz and his wife were held over to the grand jury in bonds of $5,000 and $3,000 respectively by Justice Caldwell, of the Englewood police court, on charges of arson. Herlitz pleaded guilty to the charge, but his wife denied her guilty The couple have been living at Washington Heights, and it was declared by the fire inspector in court that they are at the head of a gang of anarchists who have been guilty of committing anarchistic offenses, not only for sentiment, but for revenue to be derived therefrom.

Inspector Conway stated that he held indisputable evidence to show that an organized gang of students of Herr Most's theories and methods had been operating in Chicago and vicinity They had been carrying out their theories by burning down or blowing up houses in order to secure the insurance.

After the proceedings in court Herlitz made a full confession. He said he came here from New Orleans five years ago and met a man named Scharf, who introduced him into anarchistic doctrines. Later Scharf suggested that the most rational way to secure reprisals for capitalistic robbery was to get after the insurance companies. Bombs and other anarchistic paraphernalia were adapted to the new use, and operations were commenced. Such men as did the preliminary work, left the actual firing to Herlitz, and were to receive 5 per cent of the money received from the insurance. Herlitz said they derived a good revenue on the 5 per cent.

It is claimed that the compensation of Herlitz for each fire for which he is responsible was $100.

The Japanese troops have infested the city, and just as long as the Japanese are here there will be no trouble for foreigners Japan insists on Corea's independence and some radical changes for Corea in her internal government. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was taken down with pneumonia, succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. ### AMNESTY FOR CRIMINALS.

The Beltscheff Conspirators Among Those Pardoned by Prince Ferdinand.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 16.—Upon the occasion of the annual celebration of the accession of Prince Ferdinand, of Saxe-Coburg, to the principality of Bulgaria the prince has granted amnesty to all political offenders, including those who were connected with the Panitza conspiracy and Beltscheff murder, with the exception of Karaveloff who refused to sue for clemency. In addition, 245 common law criminals were set at liberty.

After the abdication of Prince Alexander of Bulgaria in September, 1886, Prince Waldemar of Denmark was elected Prince of Bulgaria, but he eventually declined the honor. Considerable trouble followed. Sofia was in a state of siege, there were military revolts in various parts of the country, and a Russian fleet anchored off Varnau. Eventually Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha was elected Prince of Bulgaria by the Sobranje on July 7 1887. About July 14 the prince arrived at Tirnova signed the constitution, and on Aug. 14, 1887, issued his first proclamation, against which the Russian government protested

Magnar Panitza and fourteen others, in February, 1890, conspired to overthrow the government and assassinate Prince Ferdinand and his ministers. Magnar Panitza was shot at Sofia on June 28, 1890, while his fellow conspirators, just liberated, were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment

She made inquiries by letter and started an investigation that resulted in the placing of suspicion on Gardner There was no tangible evidence until a few weeks ago, when workmen engaged in excavating for a new building came upon a body which was identified as that of Mrs. Kiezkowsky, and Gradner was arrested.

M. CARNOT AVENGED.

The French President's Assassin Guillotined at Lyons.

WALKED TREMBLINGLY TO DEATH.

The Cowardly Anarchist Had to be Assisted to the Scaffold, Though with a Supreme Effort He Cried with His Last Breath, "Vive L'Anarchie!"

LYONS, Aug. 16.—The news of the decision to execute Santo early this morning spread rapidly, notwithstanding the efforts of the officials to keep it secret. A heavy fall of rain had prevented the gathering of a great crowd around the prison, but all the wine shops and restaurants in the vicinity were crowded all last evening with people who proposed to witness the execution At midnight, however, these people were compelled to leave their places of shelter, as the tavern keepers had strict orders to close their doors at that hour.

The streets leading to the prison were occupied by troops. At 1 o'clock all the houses on the streets were closed, and no person was allowed to enter them unless he could prove that it was his own place of residence. This precaution was to prevent any attempts at violence on the part of the anarchists

The city was so crowded with visitors who came to be present at the execution that Diebler, the official executioner, after several hours of fruitless search for lodgings was obliged to invoke the aid of the authorities to procure quarters. Owing to various hitches the guillotine did not arrive from Paris until 6 o'clock last evening.

The people appeared to rejoice at the approaching end of the detested assassin. Santo appeared to be unconscious of his speedy fate His demeanor has been stolid He occupied his time yesterday in reading "Don Quixote," which he never finished

At 1 o'clock this morning the police commenced to clear the people away from the vicinity of the prison. When the troops marched to the square in which the execution took place hardly a score of onlookers were in it

The Municipal Guards during the past two days and last night have been engaged specially in the vicinity of the prison in searching for suspected persons. The aspect at dawn was most dismal. No body was permitted to walk the pavement around the prison. A few black figures passed through the deserted streets, and after an exchange of words with the soldiers crossed the square to the prison. These were detectives and journalists, who showed their credentials to the prison officials Only the procureur, the judge, a notary and priest were allowed to enter the prison.

At 3 o'clock in the morning, from a prison window not Santo's, a prolonged sigh, followed by the cry, twice repeated, of "Vive l'anarchie, broke the stillness.

Just at this moment a wagon arrived at the prison with the guillotine, which was quickly put into place. At 4.50 Santo was led out of his cell by the guards The condemned man was obliged to walk a distance of fifty yards from his cell to the scaffold, which had been erected in the square facing the prison.

The crowd outside the lines at 3 o'clock was small, but from that time it quickly swelled until towards 4 o'clock, the time at which the execution was expected to take place, it had grown to large proportions.

When the preparations of Diebler had been completed he twice tested the guillotine and pronounced it satisfactory. It was then 4.25 o'clock. The troops then closed in around the guillotine.

When daylight arrived the square and the streets nearby were thronged with people

Diebler and his assistants doffed their working clothes and put on their coats of black. Then, escorted by a squad of gendarmes, the executioner and his men entered the prison. M. Ranx, the governor of the prison, awakened Santo, saying to him, "Courage, Santo, the hour has arrived"

The condemned man with a great effort raised himself, his face turned livid and his hands and limbs trembled convulsively, despite his efforts to appear careless at his fate His trembling continued until the last moment He could hardly stand, and his limbs were so stiff with cold and fright that his clothes were put on him with the utmost difficulty.

In reply to the question of the governor whether he would have breakfast Santo declined either food or drink He also refused religious consolation from the priest.

Asked whether he desired to speak to the judge he replied in the negative. He also declined to see his counsel.

"Have you any last wishes to communicate" he was asked

"No, he answered, "only send my letters to my mother"

When Governor Ranx spoke to Santo of his mother the condemned man's eyes filled with tears, and he nearly choked with emotion He assumed his habitual indifference, although still pale and trembling From this moment he said nothing more

The assassin trembled as he emerged from the prison, and had to be assisted to the scaffold His face was deadly pale As he was being fastened down he cried "Vive l'anarchie!" Then, at 4.55, the glittering knife fell and the assassin's head dropped into the basket placed to receive it, and President Carnot was avenged. Santo's death was instantaneous. There was no unusual demonstration.

THE STRIKE INVESTIGATION

Messrs. Howard and Sovereign Before the National Commission.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The strike commissioners appointed by President Cleveland to investigate the Pullman and railroad strike began work yesterday. The sessions were held in the government building in a court room and attracted many spectators Vice President S W. Howard, of the American Railway union, was called as the first witness.

"Tell us what, in your opinion, caused the railroad strikes," said Commissioner Kernan.

"The strikes were caused," answered Mr Howard, "by the statement of the general managers that they would back up Mr Pullman during the strike."

"Who told you that?"

"The newspapers printed the statement, crediting to General Managers Egan and St. Johns"

Mr Howard then entered into an exhaustive recital of the troubles leading up to the Pullman strike. "The General Managers' association," he said, "refused to haul mail cars unless the Pullmans were attached to the trains. Such action was entirely uncalled for. The Pullmans were in no wise necessary for the transmission of the United States mails I can cite various cases when mail trains were run without Pullman coaches or other palace car equipment"

"Was the action of your union in the strike," asked Commissioner Wright, "merely for the protection of the interests of the Pullman employes?"

"No, not entirely, said Howard. "The general managers had organized against us, and we had to protect ourselves"

"Were you aware," asked Judge Worthington, "that the railroads had contracts with the Pullman company?"

"We were, and we were also aware that those contracts were a violation of the interstate law. They allowed the carrying of none but Pullman sleepers and were a direct discrimination against the Wagner cars"

Mr Howard told the commissioners that he had received a communication from the state committee on safety telling of a conversation between two rioters which had been overheard. The conversation was a dispute over money which the men claimed to have received from General Manager Egan for overturning and burning railroad cars during the strike. He reluctantly admitted that the fact that lawless men frequently seize the opportunity to riot during labor troubles is an argument against strikers.

Mr. Howard was followed by General Master Workman Sovereign, of the Knights of Labor, who described the A R U and the K. of L. as "two divisions of one army"

Royalist Commissioners Depart.

WASHINGTON Aug 16—The Hawaiian royalist commissioners who came to Washington about ten days ago left the city last evening for Chicago, presumably on their return home The commissioners while here refused steadfastly to talk publicly as to the objects of their visit to this city, and so far as is known they departed without imparting the secret except to the officials of the government. While in Washington they had interviews with Secretary Gresham and with a number of members of congress, but during their visit the president officially recognized the new republic of Hawaii, so that if the commissioners attempted to have the recognition deferred their efforts were futile.

The "Engagement" at Wei-Hai-Wei.

WASHINGTON, Aug 16—The first official news received here concerning the operations of the Japanese fleet at Wei-Hai-Wei, China, came to hand last night in a telegram received at the Japanese legation. The dispatch was very brief and was to the effect that on the 7th inst nineteen Japanese men-of-war left Corean waters for Wei-Hai-Wei, which they approached at midnight on the 9th. A torpedo flotilla was immediately sent out, and on the following morning shots were exchanged with the Chinese forts. As the Japanese men of war did not find any of the Chinese fleet they returned to Corean waters.

SPECIAL TARIFF BILLS.

Speculation as to the Senate's Action Regarding Them.

LETTER OF SECRETARY CARLISLE.

The Secretary Declares That the Passage of the Free Sugar Bill Would Cause a Treasury Deficiency Next Year—Senators Leaving the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—For five hours yesterday afternoon the senate debated the question of proceeding immediately to the consideration of the house bill placing sugar, raw and refined, on the free list Secretary Carlisle's letter stating that the free entry of sugar would deprive the treasury during the next fiscal year of $43,000,000 revenue and cause a deficit of $30,000,000, which was read in the senate, was made the justification of Mr. Harris' motion to refer the bill to the committee on finance, but Mr. Berry, a Democratic senator from Arkansas, wanted the bill considered at once on the ground that the question was thoroughly understood and that its reference to the committee would mean its death

The letter of Secretary Carlisle to Senator Harris reviewed the condition of the treasury and the estimated revenues of the government for the next fiscal year. The figures showed that under the tariff bill just sent to the president the revenues would exceed the expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895 $15,000,000. The revenues from the sugar duty Mr. Carlisle placed at $43,000,000, and from coal, iron ore and barbed wire at $1,000,000. If the house bills were passed there would, Mr Carlisle said, be a deficiency next year of $20,000,000.

The debate was marked by one of the most sensational speeches of the session. Senator Vest, of Missouri, turned on the calcium light in a speech of two hours and a half Always eloquent, the Missouri senator, smarting under what he believed to be unjust criticisms and slanders heaped upon himself railed with fine frenzy against the president and all those who had assailed him (Vest), his associates on the committee on finance or their motives He gave a complete history of the struggles in conference and justified the action of the senate conferees throughout Upon the question of referring the sugar bill Mr. Vest unequivocally maintained that its reference to the finance committee meant its death. He was in favor of considering it immediately, and of either placing sugar on the free list or at least striking out the differential in favor of the trust

Mr Vilas defended the administration against the aspersions put upon it by the senator, and also favored immediate action, as did Mr Mills, who challenged Mr. Carlisle's statement that the tariff bill would not yield sufficient revenue if sugar went on the free list. Mr Jones, of the finance committee, offered an amendment to place a duty of 30 per cent. "flat" on raw and refined sugar, with no differential The pending motion to refer had not been acted upon when the senate adjourned

The conference report on the sundry civil bill was agreed to

The events of the day did not make clearer the probable result of the effort on the part of the senate to follow the lead of the house in trying to secure the passage or the supplemental tariff bills. The first supposition after Senator Harris offered his motion to refer the bills to the finance committee was that he was acting for a united party, but it was proven that the Democratic senators were very much divided upon this question. It appears that the Republicans will also divide upon the motion, but a majority of them will oppose it.

The situation may be still further complicated by the withdrawal of the Harris motion Whether the bills go to the committee or are considered on their merits without reference they will be bitterly fought. There is no purpose on the part of the senators who are opposing them to allow a vote to be taken. When the fight begins in earnest the bills will be resisted by every means known to parliamentary tactics—by long speeches, amendments and dilatory motions of all kinds. Senator Hill's example to amend by repealing the income tax was followed yesterday by Senator Quay with amendments which included the entire McKinley law. Others of a like nature will follow. The conservatives will move indefinite postponement. They will try to prevent the senators from the western mining states from voting for free sugar by amending the bill so as to provide for free lead ore

It is thought that the resort to these tactics for a few days will convince all of the inutility at this late day of the effort to pass the bills, and that it may be abandoned They also count upon the speedy disappearance of the quorum A number of Republican senators have left the city, and others will follow tonight. Some of the Democratic senators are also preparing to go Consequently it is predicted that after tomorrow there will not be a sufficient number of senators in the city to transact business In that event it is not believed that any effort would be made to secure full attendance, but all business except that done by general consent would cease

MONSTER OF ISSOIR.

MYSTERY OF THE FOURTEENTH ARRONDISSEMENT OF PARIS.

Singular Disappearance of Many Inhabitants of the Quarter—Enticing Its Victims With Music—Death of the Gigantic Spider.

For many years it is undeniably stated that in the fourteenth arrondissement of Paris—called the tomb of Issoir—a number of persons living in that quarter had mysteriously and periodically disappeared. The most careful researches, the most minute inquiries, the most skillful agents of the police had failed to discover the least trace of them.

Every year successively some inhabitants of this quarter would suddenly disappear, leaving their friends overwhelmed with grief and anxiety. It is also stated that these strange, inexplicable facts always occurred in the early spring—from the 20th to the last of March—and without regard to age or sex.

First a notary disappeared. It was thought he had used his client's funds and fled to parts unknown. Then an old woman, returning late one night from market, was the next victim, then a laborer going home from work. The last victim had been a young girl—a flower maker out late delivering her goods. From that time she had as completely disappeared as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up. Strange to say, no children had been among the victims.

This peculiar fact was accounted for in this way. These mysterious disappearances always occurred late at night, when the children were at home asleep.

As the time was drawing near for one of these periodical mysteries the chief of police became very anxious and instituted a strict surveillance, confiding the matter to a number of the most skillful of his assistants, hoping the combined efforts of so many zealous agents would surely be crowned with success. You will now see the result.

One night—this fact can be verified by applying to the office of the prefecture—a policeman about 3 o'clock in the morning heard a distant musical song, which seemed to come from the bowels of the earth. He listened and fancied the sounds came from an opening in the corner of the street, at the foot of an enormous rock called the tomb of Issoir, or the Giant's cave.

It may be interesting to state that this rock derived its name from a legend that a great giant had been buried there many years before the Christian era, and this rock had been placed there to mark the tomb.

Surprised at this strange discovery—for the opening had never been noticed before—the policeman stood listening to this peculiar song, when he suddenly saw a young man approaching. He knew from his costume that he was a countryman lately arrived in the city. This young man also seemed to hear the subterranean sounds, first walking slowly with a peculiar marching step, as if in unison with this musical chant, then faster and faster as he drew near the fatal rock, until he ran with such velocity that in spite of the warning cries of the policeman he was swallowed up in this mysterious opening. Without taking a moment to consider the policeman hurriedly followed, first firing his revolver and giving one or two long blasts on his whistle.

At this signal several of his comrades quickly arrived. The musical chanting had ceased, but they could hear in the dark, cavernous depths the muffled sounds of a desperate struggle.

By the aid of ropes and ladders they succeeded in entering this mysterious chasm. The light of their lamps revealed a sickening sight.

The countryman was lying on his back writhing in the grasp of an unknown monster, whose horrible aspect froze the agents of police with terror.

It was as large as a full grown terrier, covered with wartlike protuberances and bristling with coarse brownish hair. Eight pointed legs, terminated by formidable claws, were buried in the body of the unfortunate victim. The face had already disappeared. Nothing could be seen but the top of the head, and the monster was now engaged in tearing and sucking the blood from his throat.

As soon as they recovered from their horror and surprise a dozen balls struck the body of this sanguinary beast.

He raised up on his legs, a greenish, bloody liquid flowing from his wounds, and, with a frightful cry, expired.

The first policeman, who had given the alarm, was lying unconscious in one corner of the cavern, where he had fallen, a distance of 30 feet.

It was with great difficulty they succeeded in removing the two bodies and the unknown monster from the cavern. The poor countryman was dead, but the policeman was soon restored to life.

The agents immediately sent for the commissioner of police, who summoned a naturalist in great haste.

The first established the identity of the victim, the second declared the creature lying before him was a gigantic spider. The species had been considered extinct for centuries—ever since the days before the deluge. It was called "Arachne Gigas" and was said to have the power of charming its victims by a peculiar musical song. None had been seen or heard of for ages, but it is now believed some of these monsters must have existed in the deepest caverns.

The above statement was corroborated by Professor Nimrod, His specimen is now publicly exhibited in the Museum of Natural History, Rue d'Arcy.

This Matter of Darning

doesn't amount to much, with the women who use Pearline. Most of it has to be done because you persist in rubbing things over the washboard so. You have to, to get them even passably clean, if you wash with soap in the old way. Use Pearline and you'll save the darning. You haven't rubbed the things to pieces, and you won't have to mend them. And another kind of darning won't suggest itself, either, for you haven't tired yourself out to the cross point with the hardest of women's work.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 411 JAMES PYLE, New York.

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S 3 GREATEST MEN. — AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

CEREMONIAL MANNERS IN JAPAN.

Etiquette Has Become Second Nature In the Land of the Mikado.

Given a highly imitative race like the Japanese, and let one undeviating standard be set before them. Then generation after generation will no change be witnessed. The standard will act like that of the French academy on the language of France. Now, at home, in America, we have 50 standards of manners—the reserved and reticent New England manners, the slap you on the back far western manners, the demagogue's manners, the drummer's manners, the cut and dried business man's manners—these and dozens of others might be specified. And it must be admitted by even the most patriotic that the man who should try to model his deportment on all these schools at once would come to a somewhat mixed result.

Nothing of this bewildering complexity has ever existed in Japan. From mikado at the top to cooly at the bottom of the social scale one undeviating standard has always prevailed. Originally an importation from China, it has been elaborated through centuries of study of the most elaborate ceremonial etiquette till at last through constant practice it has become second nature. No one ever saw anything else, ever dreamed of anything else.

There was one way of saluting a superior, one of saluting an equal, one of saluting an inferior, and one's head would have been cut off had he departed from it. No Japanese child ever saw a drummer—saw only prostrate artisans saluting samurai, samurai saluting daimios, daimios saluting shoguns. The whole ceremonial became organized into them as much as their instinctive habits into our setters and pointers, perhaps the best mannered of our population.

Little girls of 10 will one see here whose finish of breeding would have awakened the envy of a duchess at the court of Louis XIV at Versailles. Female servants one will encounter at a dinner in the house of a Japanese gentleman whose grace, charm and dignity are the quintessence of ladylike refinement. "Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle." The simple fact is that the young woman of 20 has been doing the thing for a thousand years.—Christian Register.

TEACHING THE YOUNG IDEA.

Moral Suasion a Powerful Factor, but There Are Times When It Fails.

Suppose you are a primary teacher. Do you realize what you must put into your work if you wish to succeed? You must be teacher, mother and nurse to your little charges. You must work with them during hours and for them after school. You must be ready to catch an idea anywhere and adapt it to the needs of a particular pupil who may be dull, indifferent or disheartened, or even all three, poor little chap!

You must be untiring in your vigilance over their morals and set them always a good example in manners by being courteous, even if they break your umbrella or spill ink all over your best gown. If you are a boys' teacher, you must be ready at any moment to dress a cut, pick out a splinter, arbitrate in a fight or give a decision on the merits of racers or the ownership of marbles, fishhooks and malodorous bottles of bait. If you can't meet these emergencies, the average small boy will hold you in contempt. If you want to win his love, you must know something about the construction of kites, be interested in the "oneriest lookin'" dog that ever invaded a schoolroom and not be too finicky about when he washed his hands last if a pupil should offer you candy.

If you can do all these things and laugh about them afterward, you will probably stand high in favor.

But there is a more serious consideration. You must also have his respect, and this is not always so easily or pleasantly won.

Great stress has been laid upon the efficacy of moral suasion, but there are times when human perversity rises to such a pitch that the most persuasive tongue is powerless to enforce obedience to your will. You may be obliged to pick up a shrieking, fighting scrap of humanity and put him back repeatedly where you wish him to stay till, worn out from the struggle, he succumbs and likes you all the better for having conquered him. There's nothing mean about the small boy.—Mary B. O'Sullivan in Donahoe's Magazine.

Wickerwork.

Young American girls quickly learn the art of work with rushes and wicker. You may hire in New York girls who will weave wicker about small bottles for oil or perfumes at 5 cents a bottle or less. There are places where such work is done by contract, but it is more cheaply done in large quantities by hiring the girls directly and furnishing them material bought by the bale.

The wicker weaver sits on something like a saddler's horse and holds the bottle in a wooden vise resembling the saddler's. Skilled girls work with great precision and rapidity, and the product, by reason of its simplicity, the almost natural state of the material and the obvious fitness of the fabric for its purpose, has some artistic value.—New York Sun.

A Study In Wrinkles.

When George Rignold was playing "Henry V," a friend visited him in his dressing room and remarked a large and handsome photograph of Wordsworth hanging on the wall. Said the friend, "I see you are an admirer of Wordsworth."

"Who's Wordsworth?" queried the actor.

"Why, that's his picture—Wordsworth, the poet."

"Is that old file a poet? I got him for a study of wrinkles."—London Answers.

The French colonies are exceedingly expensive to the home government, the outlay far exceeding both the income and commercial gains resulting from their trade.

THE KIPLING OF CANADA.

Gilbert Parker, the Young Novelist Who Is Winning Fame and Fortune.

Gilbert Parker, the young Canadian Kipling whose "Translation of a Savage" and other novels have given him fame at home and abroad, has won his literary spurs early in life. He is only 33 years of age, but his name is already well known to the readers of two continents, and a busy pen cannot supply the demand that exists for his work. His father was an artillery officer in the British army who served in many quarters of the globe and finally settled in Quebec, where Gilbert was born in 1861.

Young Parker was educated for the church, but on the eve of taking full orders concluded that his field was the field of literature. For a time he lectured on literature at Trinity college, Toronto, and then, owing to ill health, went to Australia and the South Sea islands. He lectured on literature in the chief cities of Australia and toured the entire country as the special correspondent of a Sydney paper. During his visit to the antipodes his literary career may be said to have received its first impetus. An English version of "Faust" and other dramatic works from his pen were produced at Her Majesty's theater, Sydney.

GILBERT PARKER.

After 8½ busy and fruitful years in Australia Mr. Parker turned his eyes toward London, the literary Mecca of so many ambitious beginners in the world of letters. He had letters to two London editors, but these gentlemen—much to their regret of late doubtless—could see nothing in his work and gave him no encouragement. He then submitted his stories to entire strangers, and the merit of his work soon won for it a place in the magazines. His collection of short stories—"Pierre and His People" and "Tales of the Far North"—achieved great success and soon gave him a wide reputation. He has discovered a new and fruitful field of fiction in Canada and has worked it with industry and great success. He writes of the days when the Hudson's Bay company's posts dotted the wilderness of the north and when Englishmen and Frenchmen were disputing for the possession of the continent with the sword.

KENTARO KANEKO.

Japan's New Minister to This Country Is a Harvard Graduate.

His excellency Kentaro Kaneko, Japan's new envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States, was educated at Harvard college and is consequently very well qualified by a knowledge of the English language and a familiarity with American history and customs for the important post to which the mikado of Japan recently saw fit to appoint him. In 1871, when Prince Komatsu visited Chicago just after the great fire, Kaneko was one of the brightest members of the royal Jap's suit. Soon thereafter Kaneko took the collegiate course at Harvard and was graduated with honors.

He subsequently studied for several years in London and on the continent of Europe and then returned to the land of the chrysanthemum. In 1891 he reappeared at Chicago with a commission from his government to report upon the prospects of the approaching World's Columbian exposition. His report secured the earnest co-operation of Japan, and it was owing largely to his efforts that the mikado was represented by such an elaborate exhibit when the fair opened.

KENTARO KANEKO.

Soon after his return to Japan Kaneko was selected for the important post of secretary of the house of peers, the senate of Japan. Later he became assistant minister of agriculture and commerce, where he made such a favorable impression that when the term of service of Gozo Tateno, Japan's minister to the United States, expired Kaneko was appointed to the vacant post. This is his first diplomatic mission of importance.

Mrs. Clarence Beebe, president of the Young Woman's Christian association in New York city, gave the farewell address to the graduating class from its business schools. She told the graduates that there were three s's, three p's and three f's by which their lives should be governed—self control, self respect, and self possession; patriotism, purity and prayer; faithfulness, frankness and flexibility.

BUNKED AGAINST ETIQUETTE.

A Florida Congressman Springs a Washington Sample on His Constituents.

The following story is told by the Washington Times on one of the Florida congressmen:

The gentleman in question was called on the other day at his hotel by a delegation of about 20 citizens from his district, who had come to advocate the claims of a certain candidate for postmaster, who, it was generally understood, was to get the place, but whose nomination failed to be recorded among the elect on the yellow tissue paper. The delegation all knew the congressman pretty well, and so they went up to the congressman's room in a body, where they found him shaving, and filed in one by one.

The Florida statesman was rather dismayed by the delegation and didn't know just what to do with them, but after a pause he blurted out rather sharply:

"Look here! Of course you know I don't mind it a bit, but a man can't act up here at Washington the way he would down in Florida. They have a thing they call etiquette up here, and it's the proper thing to send up your card before you come to a gentleman's room."

"All right," said the leader, who took the matter more seriously than was intended. "We'll go down stairs and send up our cards."

Before the congressman could recover from his surprise the whole delegation filed out of the room without another word, and a few minutes later a porter brought up a batch of cards.

The congressman reflected a moment. "Tell them I'm out," was his answer.

The delegation has not been heard of since, but it is rumored that they have purchased books on etiquette "to learn what it is anyway."

OUR MONEYED ARISTOCRACY.

Its Lavish Extravagance Opens the Eyes of Visiting Titled Foreigners.

Without making much fuss about it a large number of foreigners of rank and title are visiting American friends at their summer residences and otherwise "looking round" at this country and its institutions. Passing by some of these strangers' criticisms on the present state of affairs, it is amusing to note the surprise the mode of living here creates in intelligent minds accustomed to much simpler forms of wealth at home.

Count Nympsche, a German friend of Prince Hatzfeldt, who married the daughter of C. P. Huntington, expresses the liveliest astonishment at such an establishment as the Huntingtons occupy for other than royalty. He says there is no luxury or magnificence to compare with that seen in private houses in America anywhere from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and his opinion is echoed by foreigners of other nationality as well as by our so called English cousins.

A well known lady, who has made Berlin her home for many years, returned to her native land last spring to find such an Aladdinlike change that she says it has almost made her silly. "No one in Germany, at least, dreams of the extent of this moneyed aristocracy." She paused. "I hate that phrase and withdraw it! But it surprises me to see luxury where I left mere comfort only 20 years ago. The emperor is not housed half so well as some of my acquaintances in their summer places." The frugal German appears to be most touched by American progress in the weird art of living up to a big income. —Boston Herald.

TURTLES GOOD FIGHTERS.

Two of Them Still In a Battle Which Has Lasted Two Months.

Two months ago a crowd of coal miners near Newport, Pa., took two snapping turtles into a cockpit, and forcing open their jaws poured some whisky down their throats. Then they were turned loose on each other, $800 being wagered on the outcome, but with the understanding that no decision would be made until one of the snappers gave up or was killed. The turtles fought fiercely, each tearing his antagonist's head and neck with his horny beak until one obtained a grip upon the other's flipper.

After a brief but ineffectual struggle to break his antagonist's hold the turtle whose flipper was caught seized the other by the neck. Aside from a steady "weaving" motion there was no further demonstration for several hours. The crowd of miners watched them from early evening until long after midnight, when the two turtles, each retaining his viselike grip on the other, were carried from the pit and placed in the cellar of a deserted house.

This was two months ago, and since neither of the snappers has shown any symptoms of weakening his hold upon the other, and the bets have not yet been declared off.—Chicago Herald.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic electors of the State of New York are requested to unite in sending three alternate delegates from each Assembly District to a State Convention, to be held at Saratoga Springs on Tuesday, Sept. 25th, 1894, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

It is announced that the President will sign the Tariff bill. Who will claim the pen with which he signs the document—Wilson or Gorman?

The death of Hannibal K Sloan, one of the Democratic candidates for Congressman-at-Large in Pennsylvania, will necessitate the reassembling of the State Convention, the State Committee having power only to fill vacancies that occur within thirty days of the election.

Woman suffrage was beaten in the Constitutional Convention, last night. The vote was on the adoption of the adverse report of the Committee on Suffrage and was 87 to 55. In the convention of 1867 woman suffrage received but nineteen votes, so the leaders of the movement have at least the satisfaction of knowing that their cause has made distinct progress and may hope for better things when the twentieth century is fairly under way.

Like "Brer Rabbit," the recognized leaders of the Republican party are "laying low" on the tariff question. They realize that their party is in an awkward dilemma. It will either have to acknowledge that the new law is upon the whole satisfactory,—an admission hard to make for it has long been one of the cardinal doctrines of Republicanism that the Democratic party can do no good thing,—or it must go before the country proposing to undo, at the earliest possible moment, the tariff legislation of the present session. This will be asking the people to again undego all the losses, vexations and uncertainties of the past year and is equivalent to an invitation to a burnt child to again play with fire. The advantage of position, which for months has been with the Republicans, is now with the Democrats and cannot be wrested from them.

A large number of New England manufacturers, representing different lines of business, have been interviewed in regard to the new tariff and its effects on manufacturing interests. They are practically agreed that a return of prosperity is now assured. Woolen manufacturers are particularly sanguine, one of them, Robert Bleakie of Hyde Park, declares that free wool and the duty of forty to fifty per cent. on manufacured woolens, has restored permanent and lasting prosperity to New England woolen manufacturers and predicts that within three years it will be impossible to find a woolen manufacturer who would consent to have the McKinley tariff restored. At Lowell, the great carpet mills anticipate a much brisker trade. Mayor Sargent, of New Haven, proprietor of the large factory in Connecticut, in which 2,000 hands are employed in the manufacture of hardware, says the bill will help our export trade without increasing imports and predicts an immediate improvement in business. Fall River manufacturers make no attempt to conceal their satisfaction at the passage of the bill. And so it goes in all parts of the country. And it may be added that if manufacturers are satisfied with the new schedules and are confident of the future, there is no reason why consumers should grumble at a law which insures them lower prices, nor take their ideas from Republican papers which think they are proving their loyalty to their party by howling calamity. It's common sense to assume that manufacturers know more about the effects of the new tariff on their different lines of business than do the newspapers.

THE TARIFF BILL'S GOOD POINTS.

The New York Times summarizes the good points of the tariff bill as follows:

The bill cuts down by a considerable percentage, as a rule, the tariff taxes of the McKinley act.

It enlarges the free list by the addition of several very important products.

In the case of refined sugar the Trust's protective duty is reduced, according to the accepted Republican authority, from the McKinley tariff's 60 cents per hunded pounds to 42¼ cents.

The McKinley duty on iron ore and bituminous coal is reduced nearly one-half, or from 75 to 40 cents per ton.

Wool is made free. A tariff act making wool of all kinds free of duty would be a memorable and very beneficial act, even if it provided for no other changes in existing tariff schedules beyond a corresponding reduction of the duties on woolen goods.

With free wool we have free lumber. The Senate bill removes the duties on logs, hewn and sawed timber, squared timber, saw d boards and plank, clapboards, hubs, laths, shingles and staves—in short, substantially everything in the McKinley wood schedule except furniture, the duty upon which is reduced 25 per cent.

Salt goes on the free list. Binding twine is free of duty, also bagging for cotton, burlaps and grain bags made of burlaps. With these are Chinese matting for floors and the iron bands (cotton ties) used in baling cotton.

Plows, tooth and disk harrows, harvesters, reapers, agricultural drills, mowers, horserakes, cultivators, threshing machines and cotton gins are made free of duty. The monufacture of some of these implements is controlled by Trust combinations.

The bill removes any duty that could assist them in exacting high ring prices at home while selling implements at lower prices abroad.

The absurd duty imposed on tin the metal, by the McKinley act, is repealed, and thus the cost of a raw material largely consumed in many important industries is considerably reduced. The enlarged free list exhibits a notable reduction of the burden of tariff taxes.

BENTON AVENUE AND THE RAILWAY

Property Owners Give their Consents and the Railway Will Go Through at Once—The Street to be Paved as One of the Considerations.

It is a well known fact that the parties opposed to the construction of an electric railway through Benton avenue, in the past, have for some few days felt disposed to yield, rather than be regarded as standing in the way of public progress.

Mayor Stansbury has interested himself in the matter, and the final adjustment is in some measure due to his good offices. The terms on which a compromise has been effected are substantially as follows:

The street is to be paved from Academy avenue to Sprague avenue, as the Common Council may decide, to-night, the railway company having agreed not only to pay its legal share but a liberal sum besides, the property holders to pay two-thirds of the balance and the city the remaining third.

There is little doubt that the Council will ratify the agreement at the meeting to-night, and if so the Traction Company will begin work tomorrsw morning to connect its tracks, and the paving will be done as soon as possible after a contract is made.

THE ORCHARD STREET PAVING

The Street Blocked Up and No Material on Hand to Lay the Pavement.

The excavation has been made and concrete base laid for the brick paving on Orchard street and the street is blocked up, but nary a brick is in sight. How long these conditions will exist nobody seems to know.

The street is to be paved with Canton block if the resolution of the Common Council is complied with and with Mack brick or asphalt block if paved according to the petition of property holders.

So far as the public is concerned it probably doesn't matter much what kind of block is used if it is laid at once and the street opened for traffic.

FRESH AIR CHILDREN.

Twenty Arrive in Town, To-day—Where They Will Be Entertained.

Twenty fresh air children arrived on train 1, to day, and are distributed among the following kind people:

Mrs. George Belding, two boys; Mrs. D. W. Shaw, (Circleville,) two girls; Mr. I. H. Livingston, two boys: Mrs. I. P. Madden, one girl; Mr. Chambers, one girl; Mrs. Dood, (Otisville,) 12 boys.

Port Jervis Trying to Secure a Bicycle Factory.

Members of the Bredder-Allen Cycle Manufacturing Co., of Paterson, were in Port Jervis, yesterday, interviewing business men upon a proposition to remove their plant to that village. They desire to enlarge the plant so as to give employment to 100 hands, and require cheaper land than can be had in Paterson.

Port Jervis is asked to invest $25,000 in the stock of the company.

A Missing Maid Servant.

Rev. T. H. McKenzie, of Pine Bush, was in town, to-day, asking the police to assist him in finding Ida Moore, a young woman from Ohio, who had been in his employment for five days and who came to Middletown, Monday evening, leaving all her clothing at his house. Nothing had been heard from the girl since and he and his family had become uneasy about her. The police have reason to believe that the girl has gone to the clambake.

Woodcock Very Scarce.

Middletown hunters came home, last night, with very small bags, all reporting birds as very scarce. Thomas Watts, Esq., who brought in five woodcock and two partridge, was the most successful hunter of whom we have heard.

To Cleanse the System

Effectually yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, to dispel headaches, colds or fevers use Syrup of Figs.

WIND, RAIN AND HAIL

A Very Violent Storm Does Damage in Pine Bush and Vicinity—A Church Fair Tent Blown Down.

Shortly after 3 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, a very violent storm broke over Pine Bush and vicinity and for over an hour the wind blew a gale, rain fell in sheets and hail stones, as large as good sized hickory nuts, rattled down in enormous quantities.

In Pine Bush, leaves were stripped from trees and vines and some damage was done to gardens. Across the Shawangunk Kill, toward the mountain, the storm was more severe and fruit of all kinds was beaten from the trees and corn was stripped bare of all its leaves. Some who passed through that section even go so far as to declare that the ears of corn were torn from the stalks by the huge hail stones which beat upon them.

The Shawangunk Church was struck by lightning, the chimney being knocked down and a hole torn in the roof. A meeting was being held in the church at the time and there was a panic in the audience, but fortunately no one was injured.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Pine Bush Methodist Church had pitched a tent on the lawn of Mr. D. T. Bowen and had everything nearly in readiness for a fair which was to have been opened, last evening. Showers had threatened all the afternoon but no rain had fallen, and when this last storm cloud appeared above the mountain it was thought that the strong south wind would carry it off along the mountain to the north, and the ladies and gentlemen in the tent continued their work. The wind changed, however, and almost before they were aware of it the shower was upon them. As quickly as possible the goods displayed on the tables were covered with oil cloths and further developments were awaited. As the storm increased in severity water poured through the canvas, wetting all who were beneath the tent and it not was long before the wind, getting under the tent, began to make it heave and pitch so that it was evident that it must fall. Then they fled to other shelter, but the tent went down before all had made their escape. Fortunately no one was hurt.

It was thought for a time that everything on the tables had been ruined but after the storm was over the tent was removed, and to the great joy of the ladies it was found that the articles on the tables had been so well covered that they had escaped practically without damage.

The tent is being put up again, today, and the fair will open, to-night, and be continued, to-morrow night.

OUTING DAY AT HOME FARM.

The Wallkill Valley Farmers' Outing Day a Very Great Success—Very Large Attendance

The first regular outing day of the Wallkill Valley Farmers' Association at Borden's Home Farm was a very great success, it being estimated that over 10,000 persons were on the grounds yesterday afternoon.

The arrangements made by Mr. Borden for the entertainment of visitors were complete in every respect, every detail having been carefully looked after. At noon a finely-prepared dinner was served, to which ample justice was done.

The speaking began at 2 o'clock. Prayer was offered by Rev. M. T. Conklin. Mr. Gail Borden made an address of welcome, which was short and pertinent and was received with applause. Rev. W. M. Winant responded at considerable length. Mr. Borden then, on behalf of the Borden family, presented the association with a beautiful silk banner. The banner is white, with a clover blossom, the emblem of the association, in the center, and the words "Wallkill Valley Farmers' Association" above it. A mighty shout went up when the banner was unfurled. The gift was accepted, in behalf of the association, by Rev. W. S. Demerest.

George T. Powell, of Ghent, and Col. Cantine and Judge Graham, of Newburgh, spoke, and Goodrich Division, U. R., K. of P., of Newburgh, gave an exhibition drill.

By this time dark clouds gathering in the west, vivid lightning flashes and loud peals of thunder had warned the large crowd of the coming of a summer storm and there was a rush for home. Many, however, had delayed their start too long and were caught in the severest storm of the season. Branches were torn from trees by the gale, the rain came down in bucketsful and hailstones beat down in such quantities that men and horses could hardly endure them. Several trees were struck by lightning and several horses got beyond control, but so far as known no one was hurt.

A New Pike County Club.

The "Fermor Shooting and Fishing Club," composed of Easton, Pa., politicians, has purchased a tract of 296 acres of land in Shohola township, Pike county, which is said to abound in fish and game. They will probably build a club house.

Crops in Wayne County, Pa.

From the Honesdale Independent.

The buckwheat crop of Wayne county, though somewhat injured by the late drought, will not be a failure. The corn crop will also be much better than it gave promise of being two weeks ago.

From our Regular Correspondent.

—Capt. Pursall's Vigilant B. B. C. played the Ryerson Hill Club, yesterday, making 19 runs to their opponents 5 in three innings, at which time the game was called, as about half of the Vigilants had to meet No. 30 to deliver the Middletown papers.

THE CONDUCTORS' CLAM BAKE

A Large Crowd in Attendance—Middletown Well Represented, as Usual.

The conductors were very fortunate in their selection of a date for their clam bake. The weather could not have been finer if they had had the making of it themselves.

As usual Middletown has a very large representation at the bake, for Middletown is more directly interested in the success and welfare of Millard Division than any other one locality.

At the same time there, is not a station on the road between Cornwall and Walton, that is not represented, and there are many from New York and other points.

Erie Railway Earnings.

The Erie reports for the quarter ending June 30: Gross earnings from operation, $6,091,417; operating expenses, $4,235,639; net earnings from operation, $1,855,778; less proportion due leased lines, which are worked on a percentage of earnings, $508,260; other incomes, $288,095; gross income, $1,635,544; fixed charges, $1,954,454; net deficiency from all sources during the quarter, $318,910. The net income of the same quarter last year was $312,313, and the earnings from operation were $7,548,362.

Recorder's Court.

—Howard Jones, driver of Beasley's express wagon, refused to turn out when he met Emmet Goldsmith, a farmer, on Wickham avenue, this morning. Mr. Goldsmith insisted on his right of way and Jones became abusive. Mr. Goldsmith made complaint against him and he was arrested and fined $3, which he paid.

Several Injured by One Accidental Shot

John Milligan, of Sparrowbush, accidentally discharged a shotgun, Tuesday. The charge struck the sidewalk and rebounding, injured several persons who were standing near. None of the wounds were serious, although it was necessary to take one little girl to Port Jervis and have four shot removed from her leg.

The Mapes Family Picnic.

PAVILION, N. Y., May 21, 1885.—"I have had great experience as a nurse and midwife for the last five or six years, and I have never found anything so good as Gilmore's Aromatic Wine; have found it excellent for young ladies arriving at maturity, and also for ladies in the decline or change of life. I recommend it to the afflicted."

A YOUNG GIRL'S FORTUNE.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.

Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as her daughter just budding into womanhood. Following is an instance: "Our daughter, Blanche, now 15 years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and abandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and are positive but for an invaluable remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We had employed physicians, but she received no benefit from them. The first of last August she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervine she now weighs 106 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and studies with comfort and ease. She has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and no money could procure for our daughter the health Dr Miles' Nervine has brought her.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—Mrs. R. R. Bullock, Brighton, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

A ROUMANIAN SONG.

In the green garden sitteth on a bed
Of columbine a young and rosy maid,
Under the shade of roses white and red.

A young man lingers as he passes by.
"Oh, fair, and over fair for such as I,
Art thou a maid, dear heart?" is all his cry.

"Or art thou some glad peasant's mated dove
Or a white goddess strayed from heavens above?"

"No goddess I, nor any peasant's love,

"But a carnation in this garden sown,
A red carnation in this garden grown.
Youth, hast thou not some flower for thine own?"

"Nay, none I have," he said. "The dew am I.
I come at nightfall when the leaves are dry,
And when I go, carnation, thou shalt die."
—Nora Hopper in New York Ledger.

HAD TO HAVE A BATH

In the morning of a sultry July day Professor Botkine of the University of California was sitting on his front steps at Berkeley.

He was delightedly watching the efforts of his pet toad to capture a very large angleworm, and his enjoyment was enhanced by the fact that his beautiful German wife, who usually declined to interest herself in anything which she even suspected of a connection with science, was seated beside him, giving eager little pressures to his hand and uttering a pleased exclamation in her pretty foreign accent whenever the toad made an extra effort.

The worm gave a little wriggle as it began to come out of the ground, when, quick as a flash, the toad made a leap and seized the end of the worm in its mouth.

Then began the tug of war. But the toad was not to be discouraged. It jerked and jerked until it fairly stood on its hind legs. Still it could not dislodge the worm.

At this interesting point a train whistled.

"Why, Selma," said the professor, "there is the train already! I had quite forgotten that I must go to the city today. Where is my hat?"

"Do wait an instant, dear. Just see what that toad is doing!" she answered, holding him back.

He glanced down and saw the toad twisting its legs about until the worm was wrapped twice around it. Then the toad gave a hop, and out came the worm. This had been too fascinating a spectacle to the unwary professor. He dashed into the house and back again, kissed his wife, and, with a regretful glance at her rippling hair and soft blue eyes, started off.

Suddenly he rushed back.

"Why, dear," he cried, "I forgot to tell you that Mr. Smith, the Canadian who wrote the paper on bacteria, will be here this afternoon to stop a day or two. He may come before I am back."

She clasped her hands in mock despair.

"Oh, don't be alarmed! Just let him have a good soaking in a bathtub. Then he will come out perfectly human and happy. He's an Englishman, you know."

She grew sober as she thought how ruthlessly science and scientists seemed to dog her unwilling footsteps. Her husband certainly loved her, but he had a way of becoming utterly absorbed in his studies and then bursting into her reflections with remarks which sounded perfectly ghoulish.

Now here was this Canadian coming! And how was she to be properly interested in his old bacteria and not disgrace her husband by betraying her ignorance on the subject? she asked herself.

Manifestly he must take a bath, and everything possible must be done to make the bathroom attractive, so that he would stay there as long as possible. She went up stairs, and her own dimpled hands got down a new cake of perfumed soap.

She eyed it critically. Perhaps his severe scientific mind would be disgusted with such effeminate luxury.

She would place beside it a cake of white castile. Then, whatever his tastes, he must be pleased.

She put the alcohol and a cologne bottle within easy reach, got out smooth and rough towels and a bath blanket, saw that the shower bath worked, and, with a sigh of relief, went down stairs to impress the cook that during the entire afternoon there must be plenty of hot water in the boiler.

Suddenly a happy thought struck her. She went into her husband's study and brought out every book on bacteriology that she could find. These she ranged on a shelf at the foot of the bathtub. Standing out a little beyond the others, as if but just shoved in, was Mr. Smith's own pamphlet on bacteria.

Mrs. Botkine pinned on the wall some colored illustrations of various forms of bacteria and then surveyed the effect with the calm satisfaction of a general who foresees the success of his maneuvers.

She had done all she could. With this virtuous feeling she was able to go about her occupations for the day and in the afternoon even banished the thought of her expected guest enough to take a quiet nap.

She was awakened by a knock at her door, and the maid handed her a card bearing the seemingly innocent inscription, "Mr. Worthington Smith."

She lingered outside the drawing room as long as she dared, and then, putting her trust in the bathroom, walked in and greeted her visitor with a smile of timid welcome.

He did not look at all alarming. She was surprised to see that he was young, darkly handsome and dressed with more regard to fashion than the scientific mind generally deigns to bestow.

After the polite commonplaces Mr. Smith unctuously observed, "Professor Botkine's recent researches have been of such interest to scientific men that they must lay him open to a great deal of persecution from inquiring admirers, but"——

"Oh, not at all," she answered rather incoherently, "I rather I should say he likes to be persecuted—that is (with some confusion), he will be delighted to find you here when he returns. He was so sorry that he had to go to town for a few hours. In the meantime I hope that you will let me look after you."

"Thank you very much. Perhaps you would be so kind as to explain to me a few things I should like to know about Professor Botkine's theories on bacteria?"

He was surprised to see a deep flush and a look of distress come over her face.

Here he was, plunging into science the very first thing and turning shy besides. Oh, she must send him off to that bath! It seemed rather awkward, but she nerved herself to the effort.

"No, Mr. Smith," she said gayly, "I am sure that I could not tell you anything on the subject, and I cannot think of leaving you here alone. You must let me make you comfortable. I know that after your journey you would like a bath."

He looked amazed and then embarrassed.

"Thank you very much, Mrs. Botkine," he stammered, "but I do not care at all for a bath. I shall do very well here, and"——

"No, no!" she said nervously. "I know that you are only afraid that there is no hot water on such a warm day, and you do not wish to give trouble. Not a word if you please, Mr. Smith. You will really annoy me if you refuse."

She thought to herself that he little knew how more than annoyed she was at the thought of his possible questions.

As he followed James, Mr. Smith remarked to himself that before this experience he would have vowed that she was too pretty to be eccentric. He had no wish to bathe, but fearing to vex her meekly proceeded to perform his ablutions.

She was so elated that she went to the piano and sang for half an hour.

She was startled by hearing some one come rushing into the room behind her. She wheeled on the stool and encountered the gaze of Mr. Smith, who stood before her, looking decidedly uneasy.

"I beg pardon for interrupting you, Mrs. Botkine," he said, "but I wished to thank you for your kindness and to make my adieus."

"Why, Mr. Smith"—she began, but he waved his hand apologetically and continued:

"I am very sorry not to have found Professor Botkine, but perhaps I can come again. There is just time for me to catch the 5 o'clock train."

For a moment she felt stunned. Then a flood of questions poured through her mind. Was the man insane, or what had she done to offend him? What was there in science to turn an apparently "nice" young man into such a distrait savage? The rest of the day seemed endless, but at last she described Professor Botkine and with him a rather desiccated and "dug up" looking man.

"Here we are at last," said the professor. "I found our friend on the train. He had mistaken the train and gone to Alameda. Mr. Smith, let me present you to Mrs. Botkine."

She welcomed her guest cordially, but the minute she was alone with her husband she seized him by the lapels.

"What joke have you been playing on me?" she demanded. "Who is this Mr. Smith?"

"Why, my dear, there is no joke. This is the Mr. Smith that I told you I was expecting this afternoon. What is the matter?"

"Matter!" she cried. "Who is the Mr. Smith that came here this afternoon with a satchel and asked about your theories?"

"Why, we met him at the station. He had a few specimens to show me. He is the son of my friend Com Smith of San Francisco. He had just run over for a short call."

"A short call!" she echoed again. "What will he think of me? I sent him up stairs to take that bath!"—Argonaut.

The Slang of the Drawing Room.

If the slang of the streets is vulgar, which is granted, what of the slang of the drawing room? In how many drawing rooms is some such remark as this being made every day of every year: "Thank you so much, Miss Montmorence; it was perfectly charming. So good of you! Sure you didn't mind? Much too sweet of you, really!" Is not this italicized, adverbial, adjectival sort of observation quite as much slang as the slang of the streets, which is not so vulgar only because it is more idiotic? Listen to the fashionable young lady of the period, Lady Gwendolen Vere de Vere, speaking in the "smartest," most "exclusive" house "in town." "It was an awful lark! He's so frightfully screaming, don't you know. I thought I should have died—fact!" And young Lord Adolphus Grandsciegneur in reply: "He's a caution, but I've had a sickener of the chap. He's all very well the first time of asking, but I think he's a bit of a rotter, don't you know." Lady Gwendolen and Lord Adolphus continue in this strain until the conversation finishes. The one picture is no more overdrawn than the other. Put their conversation and the basmen's in parallel columns and say which you prefer.—All the Year Round.

A Very Sensitive Sick Man.

Supersensitiveness is a quality which often subjects those possessing it—perhaps the phrase "a victim to it" better expresses the idea—to a great deal of suffering—suffering endured simply because a peculiar sensitiveness in some one direction prevents the utilizing of means directly at hand to prevent that suffering. A residents of Lansdowne, who may properly be said to be supersensitive, when taken sick recently, for a long time refused to have a physician sent for. When pressed for a reason, he at length explained by saying, "Well, you see, it's been so long since I was sick that I'm ashamed to look a physician in the face."—Philadelphia Call.

THE PERFECT GIRL.

She's clever, pretty, sharp as steel; she's wise: she knows it all,
From A B C to X Y Z, around this mundane ball.
She talks on Keats, the care of beets and how to find new stars;
Can spout on Rome or sandy loam, is great on "shorts" and "bars."
The Golden Fleece and Mrs. Lease are at her finger tips,
And reasons for the whyness of the thus gush from her lips.
She'll talk from morn till dewy eve on anything of note.
The graphics, isms, ologies, she has them all by rote
Ah, but, you interrupt me, can she sweep and sew and cook?
Can she make last season's bonnet like this year's creation look?
Can she set a table for sixteen with a dollar and a half?
Does she know the price of onions, how to choose the fatted calf?
Why, yes, she knows all household arts, all these and plenty more.
Her name? Oh, I can't tell it yet. She's the girl I'm looking for.

Miss Jekyll and Miss Hyde.

(Scene—Miss Sadie de Primme's Sunday School class of small boys. She is about to dismiss them for the day.)

Miss de P.—And now will you promise to be good little boys every day this week?

The Class—Yes, ma-a-am!

Miss de P.—And not do anything naughty?

The Class—No, ma-a-am!

Miss de P.—And when you play marbles will you always play for fun and never play for keeps, as I heard of one little boy in my class doing?

The Class (vociferously)—No, ma-a-am

Miss de P.—I am very glad to hear it. Next Sunday I will tell you a story about a bad little boy who played marbles for keeps and was immediately carried away by a perfectly hideous fright of an ogre.

The Class (in horror)—Oh—oh—oh! (The little boy who played for keeps begins to cry.)

Miss de P.—(as she soothes him with a protecting kiss)—There, there! We will point one finger at the ogre and scare him away. The class is dismissed.

(Scene Next Day—Paddock at the race track, with the Sensation Derby running. Miss de Primme, with a glass of champagne in one hand and a pat sandwich in the other, is perched on the apex of a tally-ho.)

Miss de P. (semi-insane as they swing into the stretch)—Mischief by a length! Look! Look! See him skim! Call him a mud skate will you? There, there! Under the wire like a shot! Wee-ee-ee! Twenty to one and I've got a hundred up. (Emits a well bred shriek of glee.)—Brooklyn Life.

MELLIN'S FOOD

FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS.

TRADE "ORA ET LABORA" MARK.

THE ONLY PERFECT Substitute for Mother's Milk.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—We are using Mellin's Food for our 10 months old baby girl, and I doubt if you have a better advertisement for the Food than her rosy cheeks and solid little body. "Baby Irene" is doing splendidly on Mellin's, and if she could express her sentiments, they would be highly commendatory of its efficacy as a producer of health in babies. We shall always take pleasure in recommending the Food to our friends and acquaintances. Yours very truly, J. KALT.

1611 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—I commenced giving Mellin's Food to my youngest child, three weeks old. Previous to taking your preparation she had been unable to swallow food of any description. Since first taking it she has shown wonderful improvement, and I desire to add my name to the large list of testimonials you already have. MRS. JAMES MCMANUS.

167 Chambers St., New York, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—Allow me to say a word in favor of Mellin's Food. When our baby was born, the doctor advised feeding it on condensed milk. We did so, and the result was that he did not thrive, and we had to change. We changed to Mellin's Food, and the result is that it has been the making of him, and I cannot say too much in favor of your splendid preparation. Yours truly,

C. E. RICH (Of Wright & Rich).

1086 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—I have been using your excellent Food for the last year, and cannot say enough for it. I have used other kinds, but finally decided on Mellin's, which produced such wonderful results that I know it cannot be excelled. My baby, though artificially fed, is a very robust and healthy boy, and his flesh is firmer than most nursing babies. The bone and muscle properties are all that you claim, and although my boy is cutting his tenth tooth, has had no sickness whatever, owing to the health giving and nourishing properties contained in it. It is a blessing to babies. MRS. S. H. CARRAGAN.

AN "ARGUS" MAN OFF DUTY AIMS AT SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

Keeping Bachelors' Hall—A Church in the Grocery and Market Business—No Hocus-Pocus in the Ontario and Western's Accounts.

Quite a number of Middletowners, whose families are in the mountains; at the seashore or are visiting friends are now keeping bachelor's hall. Most of them profess to think it great fun and some of them put forth quite elaborate efforts to make the most of their freedom from family cares and responsibilities, but on the whole, I am inclined to believe that they find rather dismal business and would prefer a week to a month of it. We are all creatures of habit and it's not altogether easy to adapt ourselves to new conditions and the man who has been used to a bright and cheerful home, finds it rather trying to go into an empty house and knocking around hotels and restaurants for meals, isn't much like living to the man who has been used to a good table of his own.

***

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, at Passaic, N. J., has gone into the grocery and meat business and has opened a store for the sale of meat, eggs, flour and household supplies, and if the venture is successful will add dry goods and general merchandise. This mingling of business and religion is not as unnatural as it may appear at first blush. The congregation is composed of Polish Catholics, honest and hard working people, but utterly ignorant of the English language and of American business methods, and the priest, Father Kviatkowski, says that his people have long been at a disadvantage in dealing with shrewd shopkeepers. The store which has been running only a short time has built up a good trade. Purchasers have effected very considerable savings, for prices are below those charged by the local merchants and at the same time a snug profit has been made which has been applied to church purposes.

President Fowler and his associates in the management of the Ontario & Western, unlike the officers of many railroads, believe the owners of the property and the holders of its securities are entitled to the fullest information concerning the property and its earnings and expenditures. In 1886 they adopted the system of an independent audit of the statements and accounts of the road, and at every annual meeting the reports have been supplemented by the certificate of a firm of public accountants that they are accurate and correct. This system renders impossible any such cooking of accounts as is charged against the Atchison & Santa Fe, and is so manifestly the right thing that, if shareholders and bondholders had any rights that legislatures felt bound to respect, a law would long ago have been passed requiring the independent audit of the accounts of every railroad. In his annual report to be submitted to the Ontario & Western stockholders at their meeting in September, President Fowler will say:

The adoption of this plan of independent audit has not only proved acceptable to your board of directors and officers, but has been commended also by many of the shareowners, as well as the public press. Your officers and directors, moreover, desire to have it distinctly understood that they will, at all times, be pleased to supplement the usual annual, quarterly, monthly and weekly published statements and reports, with such additional details and information concerning the accounts and operations of the company as may be desired by stockholders of record or any owner of your company's bonds.

"HOSS AND HOSS."

A Strong Company in an Amusing Play at the Casino, This Evening.

Strictly up to the times, teeming with furious fun and containing a laugh in every line, comes the king of farcical entertainments, "Hoss and Hoss," which is announced for the Casino Theatre, to-night. At the head of that organization is that quaint comedian, Jacques Kruger, who is known the length and breadth of the continent as one of the very foremost comedians of the day. He will appear in his famous characterization of a Saugerties lawyer, "Judge Hoss." Mr. Kruger will be ably supported by a company of well-known comedians, singers and dancers, among whom are Carrie Sweeney, as a tough Bowery girl; Charlie Aldrich, Harry Crandall, Kittie Clark, Hugh Ward, Clarice Palmer, Thomas D. Ward, Donetti, Thomas Evans, Mamie Scott and others. All the latest songs and parodies will be given, as well as several novel specialties.

Hung Himself Because He Could Not Pay His Hotel Bill

William Rutherford, 25 years of age, a Fresh Air boy, who was adopted by John Rutherford, a Chemung County farmer, ten years ago, hung himself in the Central Hotel barn, New Berlin, Thursday, because he could not pay a hotel bill and had been arrested. After leaving Mr. Rutherford the young man worked at cheesemaking, and for some time had been out of employment.

THE ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

Annual Reunion of the 124th Regiment at Warwick—Veterans Meet and Talk Over Experiences of the War.

Yesterday was the annual reunion of the 124th Regiment, or as they are familiarly known, the Orange Blossoms.

Everybody knows that this is the day enjoyed above all others each year by veterans who meet to talk over the experiences of the camp and battle fields, and by their families as well, who delight to hear the tales in which their husbands and fathers were the chief actors.

NOW USE LACTATED FOOD

Healthy Babies Ought to Gain Steadily in Weight in August—Four Things Needed to Make Baby Thrive.

August for babies is a fearful struggle for existence.

An infant needs pure air, proper food, cleanliness and careful attention.

A healthy baby should gain steadily in weight in August as well as in other months.

When an infant has cut his first tooth and does not thrive as a healthy child should; when it grows pale and fretful, throws up its food in undigested masses, the first thing the practised doctor will advise is lactated food.

Experience has shown that babies gain most steadily in weight and size when put on a diet of lactated food.

The use of lactated food has made cholera infantum and summer diarrhœa troubles no longer a matter of fear in thousands of homes.

Lactated food agrees with babies when every other nutriment is refused. After a day or two the puny child put on a diet of lactated food shows a decided gain in vigor and liveliness and there soon follows a rapid increase in weight and size.

Lactated food is so absolutely free from any possibility of contamination and is so rich in everything that bone, body, and muscle need to grow on, that babies regularly fed on lactated food develop in every limb and part in a way that delights the heart and eyes of mothers.

Keep lactated food steadily on hand. It will remove the anxiety of summer diarrhœa and dangerous weakness.

MONTGOMERY.

Bad Defeat for Our Ball Players—Death of Father Brady—Death of William Dean—Colored Base Ball Players Coming—Other Notes.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—The Montgomery Jr., B. B. Club played a return game of ball with the Campbell Hall Giants at La Grange, on Monday. The Giants had things all their own way, as is plainly shown by the score, 31 to 0. The Giants played winning ball, while the visitors put up one of those harmless childlike games. It was an unmerciful defeat.

—Many from here attended the outing of the Wallkill Vally Farmers' Association at Borden's Home Farm, on Wednesday.

—Rev. Father Patrick Brady, who had been a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital in Paterson for two weeks, died there Monday afternoon. Father Brady, who had been pastor of St. Mary's Church in this village for more than twenty years, was over sixty years old. He had two brothers and one sister living, one brother having recently arrived here to care for his belongings. Father Charles Meridith, of the Walden parish, has been holding services in the church here during Father Brady's illness and will continue to conduct the same until a pastor for the church is named. Father Brady was the possessor of considerable wealth, in and about this village, and was known as a good upright citizen. The funeral was held Thursday, at 11 o'clock. The body will rest in a plot chosen by Father Brady in St. Mary's Cemetery.

—Mr. Wm. Dean, who resided with his daughter, Mrs. James H. Eckert, died at his home on Prospect Terrace, Saturday, of general debility. The funeral was held Monday. Interment at Bruynswick, Ulster county.

—The Orange County Cubans (colored) B. B. C. will play a game of ball on the Driving Park on Saturday, at 3 p. m., with the Montgomerys. This will be the attraction of the season, and the only "cullahed" ball players that ever played here.

—The body of Henry J. Miller, who committed suicide last week was buried in the Brick Church Cemetery, Monday afternoon. His two sisters, Mrs. Abram Rose, of Coldenham, and the other sister of Newburgh, claimed the remains. Miller last worked for Mr. Henry Newkirk on his farm near Coldenham.

PINE BUSH.

Festival—Church Fair—Minstrel Entertainment.

—Edwards' Minstrels will appear at Wallace's Hall on Tuesday evening, Aug. 21. There will be a grand ball after the show.
